RESEARCH INTERESTS:

My current research focuses on the consequences of contemporary organizational innovations for the nature of work. This research is based on a multi-method approach including the use of survey research and content analysis of workplace ethnographies. The topics I am studying include management behavior, coworker relations, and the pursuit of respect and dignity at work. I am also continuing my research on international comparative issues. My current focus is on ethnic relations and the transition from planned to market economies in the former Yugoslavia and in China.
